

Memories of Br. Stanislaus Cassidy C.Ss.R

by Fr. Beverley Ahearn C.Ss.R

Brother Stanislaus Cassidy, who died in 1968 at Bishop Eton.

Bishop Eton in those days it was before it became a Parish, a Mission Community, but there were public Masses during the week and at the weekends. Brother Stanislaus was sacristan –seems to be for a long time. He was very good once the altar servers were recruited and they started coming. He was very good at not only teaching the small altar boys how to lay out vestments properly for the Masses next morning but he was also very good at allowing them to help him, even though looking back he must have had a lot of work because they were so small, trying to tidy up the vestments before the priest came the next morning. But he had a good reputation and was very much liked by them.
